LOG LINES

Dec 2009—Jan. 2010

Snow everywhere! I'm glad I wasn't trying to travel over the Christmas holidays. It had to be pretty frustrating for those who did.

Congress and the World Show have come and gone since the last Log. I received some highlights from LLQHA members. Congratulations to all those who did well. Congratulations to Rita Crundwell who again was the leading owner for the 2009 AQHA World Show.

Millie Mauritzson and Chex Your Destiny were finalists in AM select horsemanship at the Congress. Stephanie Clinton & Magnetic Potential placed 4th in her youth trail, 4th in her youth equitation and 9th in her horsemanship. She also was a finalist in her youth showmanship at Congress. Alyssa Lombardi and RL A Sudden Attitude were finalists in the Novice Youth 13 & Under Horsemanship at their first Congress. Kate Fitzpatrick and Zippin in Harmony were 6th in amateur equitation in Columbus. Betsy Ginger was a finalist in novice amateur horsemanship. Kate Fitzpatrick also placed 5th in the amateur hunter under saddle and 7th in the pole bending in the amateur versatility class at Congress. Kate was also 13th in the amateur hunt seat equitation at the World Show.

Ashley Trousdale picked up points in Nov Am HUS, Equitation, and Horsemanship showing 'Invest In A Classic' at the November Turkey Run shows. They also were the circuit champs in Nov Am Equitation and picked up a point in green trail their first time out.

Congratulations to Gail Schroeder and Big Bay Investment for finishing two superiors this year—senior western pleasure and open performance geldings. (Ken Freeman showed the gelding in senior western pleasure.)

LeaAnn Koch's 2 horses are still leading the nation in open halter geldings and open halter mares. She is in the top 5 with both horses in the amateur division.

Congratulations to Jannee Waterman on her fall wedding. She is now Jannee Pugliani. We wish her the best!

Color Me Pretty

Using makeup right is the cheapest, easiest way to add to your showing style.

By Christine Hamilton in The American Quarter Horse Journal

"If you're spending $100 to $1,000 on a nice show jacket or outfit, why wouldn't you spend $15 to $150 on your glamour look to complement that outfit?" Amateur Lisa Mays often poses that question to her horse-show friends. Based in Reno, Nevada, she has been a Mary Kay consultant for years and has easy tips on how to add no-fuss glamour to your show look without breaking your pocketbook. "If you had to have just one item to coordinate your show outfit, lipstick is it," she says. Here are some other tips from Lisa:

Find the Right Foundation

A painter wants to paint on a nice canvas, and that's just what your foundation is – the canvas for the rest of your makeup. Your basic foundation color will not change, because that's your skin tone. Sandy has pink (cool undertones) in her skin. I'm Italian, and I have olive (warm undertones) in my skin. Find a foundation that matches your skin undertones.

Keep It Balanced

Everything you do glamour-wise should be to frame the eyes. Your eyebrows are the top part of the frame, the cheeks are the sides, and the lips are the bottom of the frame. When you talk to someone, you want them drawn to your eyes. People often don't stay balanced in that frame. They'll do up their eyes really well, then not wear lipstick. Or their lips will be really bright, and they'll forget the cheeks. Watch out for contrasts in balance and color – you need the entire frame balanced to keep your eyes in the center of the picture.

Watch Color Placement

Remember that lighter colors enhance and draw out features, and darker colors tend to recede. If you use too much, it only increases that effect. With blush, don't go closer than two fingers' width from the nose (approximately your eye width) and don't ever go below the nose. That way, you'll avoid mistakes like apple cheek blush. Start the color on the outer side of the face at the hairline and work toward the center, following the cheek bone. On the eyes, don't let your color go past the end of the eyebrow; all the color should stay within the frame of the eye.

Just Enough

If you are wondering if you've used too much makeup, ask yourself where your attention is drawn, to your eyes or to the makeup.

Blend Well

That is the most important application tip that people need to know. If you can't tell where the color starts or stops, then you've done a good job. If there is a line marking that, then you haven't. Have you seen someone with racing stripe blush? That comes from bad blending.

Change to Complement Your Outfit

You can have makeup on that looks good on you but is not the right color tones for your outfit. Your foundation color never changes, and you have a neutral makeup that you wear everywhere, but when you show, your cheek, lip and eye shadow colors should come from the same color family as your outfit. For example, if you pick out a royal purple and silver outfit, those are cool colors, and the colors in your makeup should coordinate with that. That doesn't mean you wear purple blush, but that the blush you use is from the cool color family. The cool color family has blue undertones. Think "ice"; it's cold and makes your fingers blue: blues and purples. The warm color family has yellow undertones. Think of the sun or fire: yellows, oranges, reds. There are colors that have a mix of blue and yellow undertones, like green, but they'll be in the cool or warm family depending on how much blue or yellow they have. And there are neutrals that go with either color family, like black and white.

Just like you have your hat box, your boot box and your garment bag for your show clothes, you should have your face box. It has foundation, eye shadow, blush, lipstick, gloss and mascara.

AQHA debuts redesigned horse registration certificates.

AQHA debuts its redesigned horse registration certificates this month.

After a significant amount of input from customers, AQHA has made changes to the official registration certificates that will improve the security, usability, value and visual appeal of the document.

"The goal was to create a document worthy of framing, and I think we've done that," said Trent Taylor, AQHA treasurer and executive director of operations. "Our members told us what they wanted, and we heard them."

Other features of the new certificates include:

- Horses' pedigrees will be larger and more visible on the now landscape-oriented certificates.
- Photographs will no longer be included on the front. "Since most horses are registered as weanlings, our members didn't like the photo of an awkward-looking weanling to be the first thing someone saw on the certificate," Taylor said. "Also, the goal was to create papers that would be more relevant as a horse ages. So now, the horse's photo will be on the back of the certificate."
- The photos submitted by the owner will be used to illustrate the horse's markings, making it easier for everyone to identify the horse. "If the photos do not clearly show what we need to illustrate a horse's markings, then we will use the drawn markings that were on the back of the application," said Tammy Canida, AQHA director of registration operations.
- Better security. Each certificate features a heat-activated authentication seal that disappears when the certificate is copied, to reduce the possibility of fraudulent sales of grade horses as registered American Quarter Horses.

NEW TRAIL DVD AVAILABLE

AQHA has released the second DVD in the Showing to Win series. "Showing to Win: Trail" is an in-depth look at one of the most popular western show classes. The DVD is geared for all trail exhibitors, trainers and judges.

For "Showing to Win: Trail," AQHA teamed with some of the best-known and well-respected AQHA Professional Horsemen, judges and exhibitors in Charlie Cole, Leslie Lange and Jim Searles, who walk viewers through the required parts of the pattern and explain the maneuver scores, pluses and minuses.

"Showing to Win: Trail" illustrates the standards and provides information exhibitors need to successfully navigate a trail pattern and the judge's score card. Using unique graphics and video technology, "Showing to Win: Trail" defines the trail scoring system and what the judges are looking for in a trail pattern.

Some AQHA Show Rules changes for 2010:

1. Processing /Drug fees raised from $3 per horse to $5 per horse
2. Judges scores sheets for scored classes be posted at the show and submitted to AQHA
3. In multiple judged shows, in timed events only, one judge can oversee/judge the class (instead of both judges)
4. Require green patterns to be used in all green classes only
5. In Amateur Division, management will combine classes into an all-age class when there are less than 3 entries in amateur or select classes (no asking, just do it)
6. In Performance halter, exclude a Register of Merit in showmanship at halter to qualify for performance halter. Those ROMs earned before 1-1-10 will be allowed to show in the Performance Halter class. All Amateur and Youth Performance ROMs earned 1-1-10 or after will be required to have earned at least 5 riding points for that ROM to qualify for eligibility in the performance halter classes.
7. Allow a horse with any performance ROM, except showmanship, to be eligible to compete in all divisions of performance halter.
8. Accept Dressage for approval (see rulebook for rules)
9. Withdraw green classes from the Incentive Fund program
10. Incentive Fund is not to be paid on points earned at Introductory shows.
11. Several penalty point changes were made in trail rules—see the rulebook for specifics.
