LOG LINES

Dec 2011

Some big changes with AQHA coming up in 2012.

I'm including some information but exhibitors should also check the AQHA website and the Quarter Horse Journal for more information.

Effective for the qualifying periods for the American Quarter Horse Association's 2012 world championship shows, horses will now be required to earn performance points during the respective world show qualifying period in order to earn an invitation to compete in performance halter at any AQHA world show. For example, for a horse to compete at the 2012 Built Ford Tough AQHYA World Championship Show in performance halter geldings, it must earn 10 performance points during the May 1, 2011 - April 30, 2012 qualifying period.

For the youth, Select and amateur world shows, the required 10 performance points can be earned in any combination between the divisions. Open division points do not count toward youth, Select or amateur eligibility. For example, three points can be earned in youth western pleasure, three points in Select horsemanship and four points in amateur western riding will be allowed, as long as the 10 performance points are earned during a qualifying period for the respective world show.

For open competition at the AQHA World Championship Show, the required 10 performance points must be earned in open performance competition.

Horses that earn performance world championships at any 2011 AQHA world show will receive an invitation to return to the 2012 respective world show. However, those horses will still be required to earn 10 performance points during the qualifying period for the invitation to be honored.

Novice Championships

The American Quarter Horse Association Show Council recently announced the qualifying options for the inaugural AQHA national Novice championship shows.

To qualify for the Novice championship shows, competitors will go through national or state qualifying. The AQHA Western Novice Championship Show will be held October 5-7, 2012, at the South Point Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas, and the AQHA Eastern Novice Championship Show is October 5-7, 2012, at the Tennessee Miller Coliseum in Murfreesboro, Tennessee.

Two national invitation opportunities exist for competitors. Those include a top-10 placing at an AQHA regional championship show in a Novice class or to show to 20 AQHA judges throughout the year. For this latter option, competitors may show to judges around the nation – there is no regional preference or requirement. The national qualifying period for the Novice championship shows is May 1, 2011, to June 30, 2012.

If a competitor nationally qualifies for a Novice championship show, his or her invitation to the event will not be for a specific class. As long as one of the two national qualifying options has been accomplished, an exhibitor will be able to enter any Novice championship class, provided that they are a Novice. If a competitor earns the required number of points to graduate out of a specific Novice class in 2011, the competitor will still be eligible to compete in that class at a 2012 Novice championship show.

In addition to qualifying, the AQHA Show Council announced that there will be no restriction on which Novice championship show an exhibitor may attend. If a competitor residing in the East wishes to attend the AQHA Western Novice Championship Show, he or she may do so. The same goes for competitors residing in the West who would like to compete at the Eastern Novice championship. However, a competitor may only compete at one Novice championship show per year.

The AQHA Affiliate Council has helped to coordinate with the state and provincial affiliates to determine the method of state qualifying. Methods of state qualifying will vary by affiliate – if a competitor is interested in state qualifying for a 2012 Novice championship show, he or she should contact their state or provincial affiliate.

From The American Quarter Horse Journal

Happy holidays!

LEVELING PROGRAM

In late July, the American Quarter Horse Association Executive Committee approved the AQHA competition leveling plan. Although full implementation of the plan will not take place until 2013, AQHA will test the leveling program throughout 2012 by running scenarios on shows that have been held and, in some instances, testing both the exhibitor Intermediate level and the horse Progressive level at shows.

The leveling program changes include more and different levels, including new Rookie and Intermediate showing levels, more and different awards and two Novice championship shows.

Leveling involves these new levels:

- Rookie (based on the exhibitor and horse's experience/points combined and designed to be the true entry into AQHA competition)
- Novice (based on the exhibitor's experience)/Green (based on the horse's experience)
- Intermediate (based on the exhibitor's experience)/Progressive (based on the horse's experience)
- Open

The purpose of the Rookie level class in particular is to reach AQHA members of all ages and riding levels. By developing true entry-level classes, AQHA plans to introduce new AQHA members, as well as current AQHA members who have never shown, to the AQHA show scene.

Rookie-level classes will be offered in all three AQHA divisions – open, amateur and youth.

Eligibility for a Rookie-level class depends on both the horse and the rider's show records:

- For a horse to be eligible to compete in a Rookie-level class, that horse must have earned fewer than 10 lifetime points in that class in any division.
- For an exhibitor to be eligible to compete in a Rookie-level class, that exhibitor must have earned fewer than 10 lifetime points in that class in any division.

Thus, to compete in a Rookie level class, the horse and rider must each have earned fewer than 10 points in that particular class.

Open, amateur, Novice amateur, youth, Novice youth and Rookie-level points all count toward Rookie-level eligibility.

Upon earning 10 points in a particular class in any division, the horse will immediately become ineligible to compete in that particular class at the Rookie level in any division. The owner of the horse will receive a certificate of recognition, similar to a Register of Merit, and the accomplishment will be added to the horse's show record.

Also, upon earning 10 points in a particular class in any division, the exhibitor will immediately become ineligible to compete in that particular class at the Rookie level in any division. The exhibitor will receive a certificate of recognition, and the accomplishment will be added to the exhibitor's show record.

For halter classes, Rookie-level halter classes must be all-ages classes and must be held as stand-alone classes. Rookie-level halter classes are not eligible for grand and reserve awards.

And finally, Rookie-level points do not count toward anything other than computing Rookie-level eligibility and recognition. Rookie-level points will not count toward the AQHA Justin Rookie of the Year Award. "AQHA was so pleased with the 10 very successful pilot Rookie shows that we had across the country in 2011," said Patti Carter-Pratt, AQHA executive director of shows. "The shows were well-received by the entry-level competitors, and AQHA is excited to offer this to riders who want to try their hand at AQHA shows. We're also looking forward to 2012 and our testing of the Intermediate and Progressive levels." (Information provided by AQHA)

CONGRESS NYATT

For the first time in several years LLQHA sent a team to Congress. Our team consisted of Cori Flowers, Lauren Brischke, Rebecca Kopping and Kamryn Kruchten. The team placed 10th in the competition. Cori was 3rd in showmanship and 9th in horsemanship. Congratulations to all the girls who represented us well!

Some Congress results — Congratulations to these LLQHA members!

INCENTIVE FUNDS CHANGES

her horses' license fees are paid into the Incentive Fund for the competition year.

Q. Now you're making exhibitors pay while reducing their take of the fund by 10 percent. Why?

A: Since inception, stallion owners have been the biggest supporters of the Incentive Fund by continuing to nominate their stallions year-in and year-out. Additionally, in many instances, a stallion owner also is a foal nominator, further putting the burden of support on that single group. While Incentive Fund eligibility does make their foals more attractive at the time of sale and thus provide them with a return on their investment, the task force wanted to investigate other revenue streams for the Incentive Fund while simultaneously boosting support to stallion owners and nominators. While it doesn't go unrecognized that exhibitors are the ones paying to show throughout the year, as a group, they have been the biggest beneficiaries of the fund while supporting it the least from an investment/financial point of view, which is why the task force recommended the moderate, annual fee of $50 per division. Remember, too, that 100 percent of that new annual license goes into the fund. AQHA is not keeping any of it. Hypothetically, let's say AQHA is successful in the first year at getting point values to $35 per point. Exhibitors would earn 70 percent of that $35 or $24.50 per point. If they paid for one division only ($50), they would see a return on their investment after earning only 2,5 points ($61.25). If they continue showing, their returns will increase more quickly than they would if point values remain where they are today (for 2011 payouts, it is expected that point values will be less than $20 per point - $20 @ 80 percent = $16 per point paid to exhibitors). An exhibitor who pays the Incentive Fund competition license for both open and amateur would have to earn 4.5 points to be ahead.

NOTE: Based on exhibitor feedback: The Incentive Fund competition license fee may be paid at any point during the year. This is a change from what was previously announced. Many exhibitors felt they wanted to gauge how active their show year might be before paying the Incentive Fund license. If an exhibitor opts to wait until March to pay, he or she will be eligible to start earning Incentive Fund money from that point forward.

Q: Why the transfer fee? It seems like once a horse/owner has paid the Incentive Fund license fee, it should extend to subsequent owners during that competition year.

A: The task force re-examined the transfer fee (requiring new owners to pay the Incentive Fund fee when they purchased a horse) and agreed to forego that fee for the time being. After additional consideration, it will likely make it easier at the time of sale if a seller can promote that his/

Q. Can I pay my license fee at a show?

A: Yes. AQHA is working with show managers to allow the license fee to be paid at a show if the owner has not sent the license fee to AQHA directly. Through a dynamic database that show managers can now access, they will be able to see if the horse has been paid into the fund and, if not, submit the payment when they send their show results to AQHA. The owner of the horse would be eligible to earn Incentive Fund money from that show date forward.

Q: If I buy an Incentive Fund-eligible horse from someone who did not pay the license fee, can I – as the new owner – pay the fee when I do purchase the horse (NOTE: This scenario is different from the previously publicized fee at time of transfer)?

A: Yes. If a horse is enrolled in the Incentive Fund but for whatever reasons an owner didn't pay the annual license fee, a new owner may pay the fee(s) and be eligible to start earning Incentive Fund money from that point forward.

Q. Why the 200-point cap?

A: While not very many horses/exhibitors earn more than 200 points during a competition year, the concentration of points that they do earn was significant enough that the task force wanted to implement a cap so that money could be spread across a larger segment of Incentive Fund horses. Hopefully, when point values travel upward, owners will look to buy an additional Incentive Fund-enrolled horse if they near the 200-point cap, so they can continue to enjoy the benefits of the program. The point cap is based on the total number of Incentive Fund points and not by division.

NOTE: In the originally publicized changes, points were "capped" at 200 with anything earned in excess of 200 points paying at 80 percent of the value. That was subsequently changed and the point cap is now 50 percent of the point value. (Information provided by AQHA)

Pretty big shows! Lots of people from Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana as well as a good crowd from Illinois. Plenty of good food at the "wasted away" event. Cori Flowers and Goodbarshandsumasset won a 2 point youth gelding class on Friday. Ann Demirjian's new horse, One Hot Juliet, was shown by Brad Dohm. Jennifer Wagner and Ima Party Crasher picked up some amateur HUS points. Kamryn Kruchten showed Alex Albright's horse Lopin in Time in novice youth showmanship, where she was second out of 21. She showed Joan Sellberg's Simply a Hustler in novice youth horsemanship and picked up points there too. Way to go! Makayla Maciejewski and Will Be Hot Sizzlin won a 4 point novice youth HUS. Claire Demirjian and Ima Mocha Chip won a novice youth trail. Joan Sellberg and Simply a Hustler and Luann Meyer and My Details are Hot picked up points in select showmanship. Tanya Relander and Sweet Movinvestment won a select western pleasure. Beth Manion and Don't BSB Me won a select HUS. Cori Flowers and Goodbarshandsumasset won a 2 point youth trail and picked up youth equitation points. Alexandra Albright and Lopin in Time won a 13 & under showmanship.
